Rosalie Edelstein new director Gwendoline van Putten School

ST. EUSTATIUS--The Board of Gwendoline van Putten (GVP) School announced the appointment of Rosalie Edelstein-Lopes as its new director on Tuesday. Edelstein's tenure will begin on August 1.

"Motivated, highly qualified, with a vast amount of experience, Mrs Edelstein is a proven achiever. She is the director of the first school, the Golden Rock School, to achieve the basic quality in the Caribbean Netherlands. Her main task would be to contribute to our GVP vision to offer challenging education in which pupils can develop their talents by actively learning in a safe and inspiring environment within and outside the school," the GVP School Board said.

The Board thanked current director André Peter IJzerman for his "valued service" to the school and they wished him much success in his future endeavours.

IJzerman has served as GVP Director since August 2014, and steered the school through a very challenging year.

"The challenge to master and lead the improvement processes of the school were compounded by the decision to introduce English as the language of instruction and preparing the transition to Caribbean Examinations Council (CXC) based school systems. We are deeply grateful to Mr. IJzerman for his service and leadership, and are tremendously excited to work with Mrs Edelstein in the future," the school board stated.

Coast Guard transports two rescued men back to St. Kitts

ST. EUSTATIUS--The two men that were rescued Monday from a boat in distress early Monday were transported back to St. Kitts Tuesday around 3:30pm.

Local authorities handed over the two crewmembers to the St. Kitts and Nevis Coast Guard at Charles A. Woodley Pier.

The men, whose identities were not disclosed, were rescued Monday around 1:00am off the northern side of the island near the coast of White Wall. The men were dehydrated and very tired and were both taken to Queen Beatrix Medical Centre for observation.

Committee formed to look into new salary structure

SABA--The Executive Council and Saba United People Labour Union Association (SUPLUA) have agreed to form a technical committee to look into the consequences of the salary structure that was introduced in October 2014.

The new salary structure went into effect after negotiations with the unions and Government Service Caribbean Netherlands RCN, which also negotiates on behalf of the local government, were concluded last year.

The new salary structure is similar to the one that was adopted for all RCN employees. The basic salaries in this scheme are lower than those in the previous structure. However, there were two additional allowances included so that the net salaries would not be affected.

Shortly after the introduction of the new salary structure civil servants employed by the Public Entity Saba expressed their concern to the Executive Council about how it would affect their spending power both in the long and short term.

After the pay structure went into effect the civil servants formally requested SUPLUA to represent them "in all matters related to their positions as civil servants working for the government of Saba."

In the meeting the Executive Council recognized SUPLUA as union to represent the civil servants of the Public Entity.

During the meeting the Executive Council made a proposal to SUPLUA to form a technical committee which will be comprised of two representatives on behalf of SUPLUA and two representatives on behalf of the Island Government. These representatives will look into the implementation of the salary structure and also into how civil servants were affected by the introduction of the new salary system.
